

Sheriff's Action Closes Clearview Spot; 2nd May Stop

"The Hole in the Wall," a notorious tavern located at Clearview, was closed this week following court action taken against the business which served beer to minors, according to Okfuskee county sheriff E. L. Jeter.

The owner's beer license was revoked by county judge Raymond Jenkins after it was proven Mrs. Lawrence Franks, operator of the tavern, had sold the beverage to 16-year-olds and during such hours when the law requires such places be closed. During the past few months several arrests had been made there, Jeter said.

Jeter is taking action in an attempt to shut down another tavern in Clearview operated by Ed Castillo.
